

MRS. WILCK'S LOST SCALP.

Now the Skin of a Dog Has Been Grafted on Her Head.

The surgeons at Bellevue Hospital are trying watching with particular interest the case of Mrs. Emma Wilck, who was yesterday subjected to the sixth grafting operation for the substitution of her scalp, which was torn from her head by her hair being caught in machinery in her husband's laundry at Twenty-third Street and First Avenue in the latter part of December, 1890.

This last experiment consisted of grafting in taken from dogs, and the dog which had been used for the grafting operation had five preceding graftings, strips of skin had been taken from the body of a lady friend of the unfortunate woman, but all were unsuccessful.

Dr. Bern Gallaudet, of 62 West Thirty-fifth Street, assisted by Dr. Van Loam, performed yesterday's operation.

Mrs. Wilck was resting quietly this morning.

WEATHER TO ORDER.

Good Chances for a Pleasant Columbian Day.

New York is having a pull with the syndicate that controls the weather and succeeded today in getting the best in the market.

While Washington statesmen were shivering with the thermometer at 38, New Yorkers were availing themselves of the sun and sunlight to make things as pleasant as man could wish.

Forecaster Dunn said this morning that there might possibly be rain to-night, but he added that it would only gather strength and "DOWNTOWN" will be cold, and for Sunday the same, and conditions now point to a similar bill of fare on Monday.

The weatherman, however, could not prophecy, but he said there was good reason to hope that Columbian Day will be as bunting dealers could wish for.
